

I am writing in opposition to Low Power FM being given priority over translator stations. I listen to KLOVE which is broadcast on a translator station in my area. KLOVE is able to provide quality Christian music to my area. Our market area has tried a for-profit station supported by local market money, however, our market was not big enough so support a quality Christian station. KLOVE is the only alternative that suits my family (self, wife, and two school age children). If KLOVE were replaced by a low power fm station, my family would lose a station that we listen to as a "family". KLOVE is as there catch phrase - "positive, encouraging". No other station in my area is fulfilling this need. Texarkana and the surrounding communities need to continue to receive KLOVE. I believe keeping KLOVE on the air in my area is in the public interest due to the message they air that is a light in a world of secular music. Christian programming (at the level KLOVE does it) cannot be reproduced locally in my size market area. Please let me keep my KLOVE translator station.
